

JM CONSTRUCTION MERGES WITH ALTIUS BUILDING COMPANY

March 15, 2022

Altius Building Company announced today that Darren Miller of JM Construction has joined the company as a Vice President. This merger brings together like-minded business strategies and a brotherhood to enhance integration between client goals and design intent to create and enhance long-term value.

JM Construction, owned and led by Darren Miller, has a history dating back to 1986 that focused on blending and integrating design with construction in relation to residential, retail, office and building alteration projects. Darren has been responsible for projects with clients such as Associated Bank, AT&T, Quarles & Brady, Erin Hills Golf Course, and multiple private residential construction projects throughout the Milwaukee market. He is also the immediate past president of the Rotary Club of Milwaukee where he remains on their board of directors.

“As we celebrate our 20th year in business at Altius, bringing Darren and his respective skill set and leadership on board was the logical next step in servicing the evolving needs of our clients. Darren brings decades of expertise in construction management practices, as well as in real estate and design, furthering the depth of resources available for our expanding Development Integration Services department, led by Vice President Jonathan Ward. Darren’s high attention to detail and drive to bring design concepts to fruition will inevitably add a great deal of value to Altius’ delivery of an exceptional work product throughout the entire development and construction journey,” states Scott Drees, President and CEO of Altius Building Company.

“The greatest and most significant reasons I chose to align with Altius Building Company were their people, integrity and authenticity. The long-term goal is to leverage our real estate and construction teams to a greater degree, and broadening our partnerships to develop ground level equity in additional deals. This can be a very demanding industry, but it should never be a grind. It should be fun and all parties involved in a project should benefit,” indicates Darren Miller, Vice President of Altius Building Company.

Link to original press release:

https://altiusbuildingco.com/news_article/jm_construction_merges_with_altius_building_company/