July 22, 2021

Alliance Technical Group, LLC (“Alliance”) completed its 13th add-on acquisition with the purchase Ambient Air Services, Inc. (“AASI”), located in Starke, FL. Ambient provides stack testing, ambient air monitoring, and CEMS installation and maintenance services to customers throughout the United States.

Acquiring AASI adds to Alliance’s rapidly growing ambient and CEMS presence and increases resources necessary to continue the expansion of all Alliance service lines in the region.

Joe Cooksey, President of Ambient Air Services, Inc. said, “The ability to offer the technical depth and additional resources that Alliance brings to the table will help us continue to service and grow our customer base. Adding the resources and opportunities to provide our talented employees with a well-defined career path across multiple divisions really excites me.”

Together, Alliance and Ambient Air have a national footprint with coast-to-coast offices and almost 800 employees, providing a deep bench of technical expertise across a diverse range of end markets.

“Adding resources to our rapidly expanding service lines is an important part of our commitment to our customers, and Ambient Air delivers on both technical expertise and experience,” noted Alliance CEO Chris LeMay. “This is an exciting time at Alliance, and we continue to grow at a pace unmatched in this industry—all while keeping our focus on the key elements of consistent service, quality, and timely deliverables.”
