

Orsatti Water Consultants Joins with Anchor QEA to Expand Water Resources Services

February 17, 2022

Colorado-based Orsatti Water Consultants, LLC, has joined with environmental consulting firm Anchor QEA to expand our high-quality water resources and civil engineering services to clients nationwide. As a part of the transition, Orsatti Water Consultants is now operating as Anchor QEA. Our teams eagerly look forward to working together to implement sustainable solutions to our clients' most difficult water-related problems.

Founded in 2017 by Robert Orsatti, Orsatti Water Consultants provides municipalities, government, and private sector clients with innovative and cost-effective engineering solutions to their water, wastewater, and civil infrastructure needs. His firm delivers planning, design, and construction management services, with advanced expertise in treatment, hydropower, alternative project delivery, facilities evaluations, and value engineering. With more than 39 years of experience, Mr. Orsatti offers water and wastewater technical capabilities that span an extensive array of projects and regions.

Headquartered in Seattle, Washington, Anchor QEA is a nationally recognized environmental science and engineering consulting firm specializing in aquatic, shoreline, and water resource projects, including coastal and flood resiliency. With a continued focus on growth, this merger will enable Anchor QEA to expand its water resources work into the Southwest regions while providing clients access to Orsatti Water Consultants' unique capabilities.

Having consulted together on multiple projects over the last two years, our teams have a proven ability to work together to deliver innovative results, and we are excited to strengthen this partnership as one. Based on a strong foundation of shared values and goals, we will continue both firms' traditions for excellent services, cutting-edge technical expertise, and a deep understanding of the science to solve environmental problems.
