

Apex Acquires CME Engineering

October 05, 2021

Apex Companies, LLC (Apex), a national leader in engineering, water resources, and environmental services, today announced the acquisition of CME Engineering LP and CME Operations LP, regional providers in civil, mining, water, and environmental engineering.

Based in Greensburg, Pennsylvania, CME brings nearly 60 professionals including engineers, geologists, surveyors, and water/wastewater treatment plant operators. The firm serves clients across the Mid-Atlantic with offices in Greensburg, Somerset, and Johnstown, Pennsylvania. Founded in 1999, CME's reputation for technical excellence, reliability, and innovation has led to a loyal client base and a robust portfolio of repeat business.

"We are excited to be joining a firm that is also dedicated to exceeding client expectations and providing best in class solutions for the most pressing environmental and engineering challenges of today," said Sean Isgan, CME Co-Founder & CEO. "Apex and CME provide each other with complimentary services that will allow us to expand our customer base and service lines. A future with Apex provides exciting opportunities for our staff and for our clients whose needs are ever expanding."

Mr. Isgan will remain with the firm and work hand in hand with Apex leadership on integration and future expansion of the business under the Apex brand.

"CME adds new mission-critical capabilities in engineering, water/wastewater and power. This and the diverse talent that Sean and his team bring to Apex builds upon our recent investments in infrastructure services, and further diversifies our capabilities in engineering, water and environmental services." said Apex President & CEO, David Fabianski. "The management core at CME is very strong and the entire staff is incredibly passionate about what they do. We look forward to welcoming them to Apex."
