

Smith Roberts & Associates Structural Engineers is Joining the ARCO Design/Build Team

February 22, 2022

ARCO Design/Build (ARCO) has announced that respected engineering firm, Smith Roberts & Associates (SRA) will operate as ADB Structural Engineering and function as an extension of ARCO DB Companies, Inc.

“We’re excited about joining forces and expanding the impact and delivery of ADB Structural Engineering,” said Tom Smith, President of SRA. “SRA and ARCO have a long history of working together to deliver industry leading solutions for industrial clients. We look forward to continuing our work together as one team.”

A proven leader in design-build construction, ARCO has been expanding their in-house design capabilities with the establishment of their architectural group, ADB Design Services in 2017 and ADB Structural Engineering in 2020. Both groups provide architectural and structural design services for ARCO related projects in industrial speculative buildings and build to suit projects nationwide.

“Our groups in the Northeast and Indianapolis have been working with Tom and the SRA Team for close to 15 years,” said Andrew Long, Vice President and Director of Structural Engineering for ADB Structural Engineering. “We’ve developed great relationships with the SRA team and they have been an incredible partner and a huge part of our success.”

In-house structural engineering provides ARCO even greater ability to control every aspect and detail of a building. Throughout the duration of a project, ADB Structural Engineering is in constant communication with design/build managers and architectural teams to complete designs as efficient as possible and to ensure the construction team has the support they need.

“SRA has built a tremendous reputation as a leader in structural engineering with a proven track record of successful projects in Indianapolis and across the country,” said Ben Titus, President, ARCO Design/Build Indianapolis. “Together, we will continue to make the construction experience enjoyable for our clients. We’re thrilled to welcome the SRA team to the ARCO family.”
