

ENGEO and TerraCosta Join Forces

March 30, 2021

Two leading geotechnical and environmental engineering firms have come together to form a team that is unrivaled in technical excellence and client service.

ENGEO Incorporated and TerraCosta Consulting Group (TerraCosta), a long-time San Diego firm, have combined to create California's most comprehensive geoscience company, with more than 90 registered Geotechnical, Geologic and Environmental professionals and a total staff of more than 350 professionals located in California, Nevada, Washington, Guam, New Zealand, and Australia.

Uri Eliahu, ENGEO's President and CEO, says "This merger is all about our clients. We're eager to extend our absolute dedication and exceptional service to TerraCosta's clients; likewise, TerraCosta's expertise will bring a new level of service to ENGEO's clients. Combining the companies will result in a powerhouse of talent equipped to tackle any project. This is a great step in advancing ENGEO's vision to be the most admired and trusted service firm in the world."

Walt Crampton of TerraCosta, says "We're excited to join ENGEO's deep bench of talent and bring their unique, client-focused technical capabilities to our clients. In addition, combining ENGEO's and TerraCosta's intimate familiarity with California's geotechnical, coastal, and seismic setting will significantly enhance the value that we bring to our clients." Walt Crampton will continue his decades-long project service from the firm's San Diego office.

Link to original press release:

<https://www.engeo.com/engeo-and-terracosta-join-forces/>