May 16, 2022

Global Infrastructure Solutions Inc. (GISI) announced today its merger with GEI Consultants, Inc. (GEI). This merger advances both companies' shared strategy for broader employee ownership and professional growth in the construction-management, engineering and environmental industry.

"The merger will be a catalyst to GEI's strategic growth throughout North America," according to Ron Palmeri, GEI's CEO. "As with GISI's prior mergers, GEI will retain its brand as a way to honor its professional reputation and legacy. Our merger will provide the opportunity for all our employees to become shareholders, as we join together to provide superior service and value for our clients, fellow employees and GISI." Ron added, "We believe that GISI offered the best option for our future and next generation of leaders. We share a commitment to private employee ownership and an empowered seller doer delivery model."

Rick Newman, GISI's President and CEO, said, "The merger with GEI advances GISI's Global Engineering and Consulting Platform, and complements the services and successful growth of GISI's other operating companies." Rick added, "GEI has distinguished itself with a series of award-winning projects with its staff receiving recognition for its reputation of professional excellence and contributions from many industry and community organizations."

With more than 1,000 staff and 44 offices in North America, GEI is a leader in providing multi-disciplined water resources, environmental, geotechnical and coastal engineering solutions to a broad range of private and public sector clients, both domestically and abroad.
