

KCI Acquires Geomatics Practice of Weston & Sampson

January 6, 2022

KCI is pleased to announce the acquisition of the Geomatics practice of Weston & Sampson, a consulting firm with offices along the East Coast. The addition of the Geomatics team to KCI will further the firm's growing surveying, 3D scanning, and mapping capabilities both on the East Coast and throughout KCI's continuously expanding nationwide footprint.

Thirty professional land surveyors, certified photogrammetrists, licensed unmanned aerial systems pilots and field technicians will join KCI's existing team in providing conventional surveying, aerial mapping and LiDAR, terrestrial laser scanning and 3D visualization services to private and public clients for transportation, facilities and utilities projects. The team's recently completed work includes the surveying and mapping of the Ronald Reagan Washington International Airport's sewer system, boundary and topographic surveying for a range of solar array installations, and 3D visualization for both the East End Connector interchanges and the widening of NC 69 in North Carolina.

Current Geomatics leaders, Gordon Matson, PLS, David Lukac, Jr., PLS, EIT, and Gary Thurman, LS, are joining the firm as practice leaders and will continue to manage their teams under KCI. Together, they have a combined 105 years of professional experience and a proven track record of successfully leading their business units to new regions, service offerings and clients. Their teams come equipped with state-of-the-art surveying equipment including Robotic Total Stations, Reigl and Faro LiDAR units and a fleet of unmanned drones as well as expertise in industry standard mapping and modeling software such as AutoCAD, MicroStation and ESRI ArcGIS.

The Geomatics team will join staff in KCI's Raleigh, North Carolina, and Sparks, Maryland, offices while also continuing to operate out of their current locations in Albany, New York, Rocky Hill, Connecticut, and North Charleston, South Carolina.
