

Procon Acquires Lutz Engineering

December 7, 2020

Procon Consulting, a leading program and project management firm, has announced its strategic acquisition of Lutz Engineering, Inc of Wilmington, Delaware. Lutz is a mechanical engineering firm that has been providing commissioning, energy, and building automation services for over 23 years

“This acquisition augments Procon’s existing building commissioning practice and supports our growth strategy to expand our service offerings and presence into new market sectors,” said Mark Ilich, Executive Vice President of Procon Consulting. “We are confident that the combination of our two firms, including the exceptional talent Lutz personnel brings to the table, will further diversify our product offerings, broaden our client reach, and enhance loyalty with our existing clients.”

Under the leadership of Robert ‘Bob’ Lutz, PE, Lutz Engineering has established a strong reputation for its commitment to quality in commissioning, mechanical engineering and design, automation design and planning, building automation system services, and energy services. Lutz built a particularly strong portfolio of projects in the education, non-profit, and private sectors.

“Lutz Engineering has always endeavored to be the regional commissioning agent of choice for discerning architects and owners, offering high-quality design and client service,” said Bob Lutz, PE, principal, Lutz Engineering Inc. “We are excited at this opportunity to expand our service offerings along with the increased level of resources and experience that Procon provides. We will continue to serve our existing clients and bring added value to future clients.”
