

Thomas & Hutton's Atlanta Market Grows With The Addition Of DP&E

January 28, 2021

Thomas & Hutton (T&H), a Southeast-based, privately-held, professional consulting and engineering firm, is pleased to announce the addition of Buford, Georgia's Development Planning & Engineering, Inc. (DPE) and DPE Surveying, Inc. to the team. With offices in Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, and Tennessee, T&H's addition of DPE increases its presence in the greater-Atlanta region. The combination was effective January 1, 2021, and DPE will operate under the T&H brand.

DPE joins the Chamblee and Covington office locations representing the T&H Atlanta region. T&H is well-positioned to provide more civil engineering and surveying services for transportation, commercial, industrial, and residential projects in and around Atlanta. On growing the Atlanta region, Regional Director Garrett Phelps, PE says, "We are excited about the addition of DPE to the Thomas & Hutton family. Their suite of services and expertise compliments those of T&H, and further strengthens our capabilities in the Atlanta market and beyond, particularly in the areas of transportation design and land surveying. This is truly a win-win for the work we do and the clients we serve. I look forward to what we can accomplish as ONE company."

Kyle Bowen, PE, serving in his new role as a T&H Principal and Client Manager with a primary focus on the civil design of residential and commercial developments in the Atlanta region, states, "The decision to join T&H was made with the mutual success of our clients and employee family at the forefront. From the beginning, we felt that our companies had a similar workplace culture and philosophy of maintaining long-lasting client relationships by providing personal, professional, and quality service. We are excited to join T&H and are confident that this decision will enhance the services we provide our clients while advancing opportunities for our strong team of engineers and staff."

Throughout its 75-year history, Thomas & Hutton provides engineering solutions across the southeast. The addition of DPE's transportation expertise strengthens the firm's services, including major and minor roadway, interchange, and roundabout design; non-motorized and multimodal facilities; intersection improvements; traffic calming; hydrology and hydraulic studies; MS4; and utility coordination.
