

Integrus Architecture & YGH Architecture Merge

July 22, 2022

Integrus Architecture and YGH Architecture are thrilled to announce our coming together to practice as one unified firm.

Our merger is the next step in a joyful collaboration of two great Pacific Northwest design firms who, for generations, have played significant roles shaping the public realm. Our shared values are evidenced in the similarities of the mission statements that each firm has carried into our merger. As one firm, our shared resources will be even more impactful, as we continue to sculpt public spaces that provide a direct expression of the aspirations, activities, and relationships embedded in our communities. Our shared work will continue to pursue solutions that reflect our values for environmental stewardship and social justice as we practice in an unprecedented era and as we work towards a more just and equitable society.

We now extend our design services across three offices in Portland, Oregon and Seattle and Spokane, Washington. The Integrus/YGH merger will offer master planning, architectural, structural engineering, interior design, and experiential design services. Together, we will continue to build on the almost 70-year legacy our two firms have built, committed to providing crafted solutions for our communities in our most important civic spaces.
