J.S. Held, a specialized, global consulting firm, announced today that it has acquired Frostbyte Consulting (Frostbyte). Based in Calgary, Alberta, Frostbyte provides environmental, health, and safety (EH&S); sustainability; and environmental, social, and governance (ESG) advisory and technology services globally.

Frostbyte advises clients on a wide range of issues found where business and the environment meet, and delivers solutions that span ESG and sustainability management, EH&S management, regulatory compliance, digital transformation, and end-to-end software implementation and process optimization support.

“J.S. Held is acquiring a global leader in EH&S compliance and business information solutions. The Frostbyte team brings cutting-edge ESG and EH&S advisory and technology expertise to the firm and bolsters our sustainability solutions,” said Paul Banks, Executive Vice President and Environmental, Health & Safety Practice Lead for J.S. Held. He continued, “We are excited for what this addition brings to our clients as they negotiate an ever-changing ESG landscape and strive to meet their sustainability goals.”

Founder & CEO Steven Andersen’s passion for sustainability, particularly in addressing and reducing environmental impacts of heavy industry, led to the founding of Frostbyte 20 years ago. “From the beginning, Frostbyte has provided sustainable business solutions to help our clients navigate complex EH&S and risk management challenges that are continually evolving,” said Andersen. “By joining forces with J.S. Held, we gain additional resources and experts from a variety of backgrounds and disciplines that complement the strengths of our team.”
