

DeSimone Acquires Dowco Group's Global Detailing and Building Information Modeling Business

January 6, 2023

DeSimone Consulting Engineering D.P.C., a leading full-service engineering firm with offices worldwide, announced a new agreement to acquire Dowco Group's global detailing, preconstruction and building information modeling services business.

"Through the acquisition of Dowco's detailing and BIM services business, DeSimone can now more quickly deliver projects by bringing engineering and detailing into the design phase early," said Stephen DeSimone, chairman and CEO of DeSimone Consulting Engineering D.P.C.

"We welcome our new Dowco colleagues from around the world," DeSimone added. "Together, we are building a global digital design and detailing team, which allows us to offer structural solutions for clients inclusive of design, detailing, BIM, and virtual construction services."

Ewen Dobbie, president and CEO of Dowco Group of Companies, said: "Today is another important day in the history of our company. Given Dowco's pioneering role as the first North American user and reseller of Tekla Structures software, we have played a key role in the development of North America's 3D structural modeling and emerging markets for BIM and digital construction services."

Dobbie added, "We have witnessed first-hand the value realized when creating accurate digital structural models earlier in the design process. As long-time advocates for engineers and detailers working collaboratively in a connected digital construction environment, we applaud DeSimone for its commitment to reducing project risk and rework and for producing better project outcomes for its clients. We fully believe this transaction will enhance our presence in the U.S. and help us market our services to an expanded client base."
