

Legence Acquires Three Western U.S. Firms To Further Expand Its Sustainability Solutions

January 23, 2023

Legence, a Blackstone company and the world's first Energy Transition Accelerator™, announced today three key acquisitions in the Western United States to provide deep and localized expertise in decarbonizing the built environment.

These strategic acquisitions include Shadpour Consulting Engineers Inc (SC Engineers), a California-based MEP engineering firm focused on mission-critical customers, Trinity Process Solutions Inc (Trinity), a design-build mechanical contracting firm in Los Angeles that specializes in high purity process piping, and KLOK Group, a full-service MEP engineering solutions provider in Colorado.

In addition to building out Legence's professional capabilities, the move provides the expanded team access to Legence's ecosystem of engineering and implementation expertise. Furthermore, the acquisitions put Legence in a more robust position to deliver on its commitment to making the built environment healthier, more efficient, and more sustainable as building owners navigate decarbonization.

"When Legence is exploring potential partners to strengthen our end-to-end sustainability services in the built environment, we're looking for firms that can seamlessly integrate into our legion of companies," said Legence CEO Jeff Sprau on the importance of finding the right fit. "This enables speed at scale for customers. Cultural alignment is a priority for Legence, and the difference shows in our industry-leading results."

The new partnerships reflect the growing need for high-level sustainability consulting, MEP design, and construction execution services across a range of industries, and reaffirm Legence's aggressive growth trajectory.
