

System One Announces Acquisition of RPG Resources

January 31, 2023

System One, a leading provider of outsourced services and workforce solutions, today announced the acquisition of Pittsburgh-based RPG Resources, a diverse environmental services company, providing environmental compliance, UAS and data collection, and inspection services to some of the industry's largest oil & gas, renewable energy, and telecom companies.

This acquisition enhances System One's commitment to environmental services and is a highly strategic complement to what System One currently provides to the oil & gas, renewable energy, telecom, transmission & distribution, and utility services sectors.

"We couldn't be more excited to have the ability to work with such a talented management team and dedicated group of employees," said System One President and COO, Greg Lignelli. "Their commitment to serving customers safely, efficiently, and with the highest levels of expertise are characteristics that truly stand out in the marketplace."

"RPG's environmental services are highly complementary to so many System One capabilities and relationships. We are extremely excited about the many opportunities for continued growth and success this partnership will deliver to our valuable employees and customers." said Phil Kurello, Managing Partner at RPG Resources.

RPG Resources will maintain its brand and work in collaboration with System One with the intent to integrate the businesses over time.
