Miami-Based Amicon Management to Join Growing International Construction Consultancy Cumming Group as the Firm Continues National Expansion

Making the merger official earlier this month, Cumming Group, an international project management and cost consultancy, announced that Amicon Management has joined the firm's growing team of construction professionals. By adding one of Miami's largest locally-based project management firms, Cumming will be able to immediately expand its presence throughout the Greater South Florida region while providing additional resources and unmatched expertise.

With more than 65 local team members, Amicon Management, LLC. (AMICON) is a construction services consultancy that specializes in the oversight of large-scale developments, including the project and cost management for assignments in the luxury residential, commercial, mixed-use, high-end retail, homeowner's associations, and educational sectors throughout South Florida.

"We are delighted to welcome AMICON as their reputation and dedication to the region will allow us to provide even greater client support throughout the State of Florida," said Derek Hutchison, president, and CEO at Cumming Group. "With Florida growing at record levels, the natural alignment of our services, company cultures, and sector expertise were compelling benefits for both teams from the very beginning when looking to expand our footprint in the state."

Successfully completing projects in Miami for nearly 30 years under founders Adam Mopsick and Ross Adickman, AMICON has developed longstanding local relationships and earned a reputation for providing best-in-class owner representation services. Focusing on maximizing value while minimizing risk has allowed AMICON to develop a diverse project portfolio and maintain an expansive client list including Brickell Arch, Gulliver Schools, Jungle Island, and Make-A-Wish Southern Florida, among many others.

"Partnering with Cumming marks a major milestone in Amicon Management's growth," said Mopsick, president at AMICON. "We have always sought to improve and expand services for our clients while providing the best career opportunities for our team members. This merger provides us with a premier platform for both. As Florida continues to be one of the most attractive development markets in the country, we couldn't be prouder to align with Cumming's long-standing reputation as a true client advocate and our shared core values. AMICON's local expertise combined with Cumming's depth and project experience makes this a perfect fit to meet Florida's growing need for construction industry leadership."

The Miami-based group will continue to operate under the day-to-day leadership of its current executive team as AMICON, A Cumming Company during its structured integration with Cumming's other locally-based teams.
