

WWC Engineering acquired Madison Engineering

April 15, 2023

The acquisition of Madison Engineering brings quality project managers, design engineers, and construction engineering technicians to the WWC team. Madison Engineering has served the Gallatin area for more than 15 years, providing the highest quality of engineering, construction inspection, and residential air quality testing services. From project planning through final platting, and construction, Madison Engineering works closely with city, state, and county departments to ensure quality applications are submitted within a reasonable timeline.

This valuable addition to WWC brings new and complementary skills as well as geographic expansion to better serve our clients. With more than 120 employees, WWC has served the Rocky Mountain region since 1980 with a focus on providing innovation, quality, and service with every project.

Link to original press release:

https://www.linkedin.com/posts/wwc-engineering_engineering-team-activity-7052391385282326528-8qdf/?utm_source=share&utm_medium=member_desktop