

DUNAWAY'S GROWTH CONTINUES WITH THE ACQUISITION OF BEC ENGINEERS AND CONSULTANTS

July 7, 2023

The Houston-based civil and structural engineering firm, BEC Engineers and Consultants, has been acquired by Dunaway. Through the acquisition, Dunaway has officially opened its Houston office. The firm has tapped Principal and Chief Revenue Officer Ross Eubanks, PE, SE to lead the office, and Development Executive and Principal, Chris Vadala, who will oversee business development operations alongside BEC Executives Karl Breckon and Reece Scott.

Mr. Eubanks plays a vital role in the advancement of Dunaway's corporate strategies. Ross' technical ability spans structural and civil engineering with extensive knowledge in the design of complex educational, commercial, and healthcare projects. He has also served as Regional Executive for Central Texas, responsible for the growth and business operations of Dunaway's Austin and San Antonio offices. He is excited to translate that growth to the Houston market. "Having a Houston presence will enhance our ability to support our clients and provide exciting opportunities for Dunaway," explained Eubanks. "One of our differentiators is Dunaway's multi-discipline approach to projects. We intend to bring all service lines into the Houston market for the benefit of our clients."

Dunaway recognizes the value of the Houston market as the largest metropolitan in Texas and the fourth largest in the nation. As a multi-discipline firm, Dunaway offers a wide range of services, including structural and civil engineering, planning + landscape architecture, survey, and construction inspection services. Through the acquisition of BEC, Dunaway will open their office with nearly fifty employees and will broaden their capabilities through BEC's experience serving residential markets, in addition to supplying foundation analysis and design, construction inspections, and renovation engineering. The partnership rounds out Dunaway's wealth of disciplines, allowing the firm to plant a focus on community development/master-planned communities.

For the past 21 years, BEC has built strong relationships and attended to the needs of its clients. They design with confidence and offer communication every step of the way. Together, Dunaway | BEC Engineers and Consultants bring the much-needed resources and talented group of professionals you deserve on each of your projects. "We decided to partner with Dunaway for two specific reasons. One, we believe Dunaway's expertise and resources will directly benefit our existing client base. Two, our core values couldn't have been more aligned, which will allow our team to grow professionally under the same company standards we have already created and believe in," explains Karl Breckon, PE, CEO.

Link to original press release:

https://dunaway.com/news_insights/dunaways-growth-continues-with-the-acquisition-of-bec-engineers-and-consultants-llc/