Benesch has acquired McAfee Henderson Solutions (MHS), a Kansas-based provider of civil engineering, surveying and construction engineering services. MHS serves both public and private clients throughout Kansas and Missouri, offering substantial expertise in all phases of land surveying, civil engineering and construction engineering.

MHS will join Benesch's Kansas Division offering expanded capacity and expertise. This acquisition reflects Benesch's plans for strategic growth in the region and beyond.

"As we grow in Kansas and throughout the country, we continue to prioritize our clients and their communities' needs," said Benesch CEO Kevin Fitzpatrick. "MHS' dedication to providing exceptional service coupled with their expertise makes them well suited to join Benesch. We are all incredibly excited to welcome them to the team."

Established over 20 years ago, MHS has an impressive portfolio of projects across commercial, education, municipal, government, residential and other markets.

"MHS has always been dedicated to providing honest and ethical service to our clients and community. By joining Benesch, we will not only be able to continue to do that, but we will also be able to offer expanded services and capacity," said President Matt Henderson. "Knowing we share similar values and culture with Benesch assures me that this will be beneficial for our clients, employees and communities."
