

Susquehanna Private Capital Announces Investment in U.S. Compliance

September 27, 2023

Susquehanna Private Capital (“SPC”), a middle market private equity firm, today announced an investment in U.S. Compliance (the “Company”), an industry leading provider of environmental, health and safety (“EHS”) compliance management solutions to facilities operating across a variety of end markets throughout North America. Terms of the transaction were not disclosed.

U.S. Compliance was founded in 1988 to address the compliance requirements facing facility operators amidst expanding workplace safety (OSHA) and environmental (EPA) regulations. The Company delivers comprehensive and site-specific services to EHS compliance decision makers within clients of all sizes – including owners and executives, HR professionals, plant managers and corporate EHS managers – to effectively drive their bottom-line growth while saving lives, preventing injuries and abiding by environmental standards. Leveraging its unique Compliance as a Service (CaaS) subscription model, U.S. Compliance provides an array of specialized services enabling clients to achieve and maintain EHS compliance by acting as an extension of their teams.

Jim Ginther, CEO of U.S. Compliance commented, “Our partnership with SPC represents a pivotal moment in the Company’s history. We are thrilled to find a partner that will help us accelerate our long-term growth plans and find ways to better serve our clients. SPC’s financial resources and proven track record of successfully partnering with businesses to create lasting value will allow U.S. Compliance to scale our team and unlock new opportunities through our best-in-class EHS compliance solutions.”
