Acquisition of Soundview Consultants represents a symbiotic relationship and values alignment with Trinity and strategically positions the organization for continued growth and innovation

Trinity Consultants announces that Soundview Consultants LLC, a Gig Harbor, WA-based environmental consulting firm specializing in natural resource assessments, environmental planning, land use, and permitting services has joined its Water & Ecology pillar of business.

Soundview Consultants joins the Trinity Water & Ecology team of experts from previous acquisitions: Minnow Environmental, ECOSA, Vision Environmental, Ecofish Research, and WestLand Resources.

Celebrating 15 years in business, Soundview Consultants is comprised of scientists, planners, and project managers in service of optimal site utilization and intelligent permitting strategies that carefully consider clients' needs while balancing the complexity of the regulatory environment. The company provides its clients with natural and aquatic resource assessments (including wetland and ordinary high-water delineations and site assessments), extensive environmental planning (analysis, code review, documentation, mapping and negotiations), and unique mitigation planning to ensure the best use of land, favorable project entitlements and permits, and ongoing regulatory compliance for projects with complex aquatic and ecological challenges.

"Soundview embodies the principles of scientific excellence and environmental ethics that we most value in pioneering solutions for a changing climate," said Mike Remsberg, Divisional President of Trinity Consultants' Water and Ecology business. "The company's shared values and complementary services make it a great fit—both culturally and technically—within the Trinity ecosystem. Soundview's reputation as a marquee aquatic consulting company will augment our specialty in this area, ultimately allowing us to be stewards of a stronger, more sustainable environment."

Trinity's acquisition of Soundview highlights the company's commitment to developing its natural and aquatic resource consulting practice in the US market and complements existing areas of expertise including air, water, and acoustics.

"The Trinity acquisition marks the next phase of Soundview's ongoing growth and successional planning to help protect the long-term viability of the leading environmental consultancy we have built," said Jeremy Downs, President and Founder of Soundview Consultants. "This partnership enables us to ensure strong career growth opportunities for our team and expand into new markets."

Chinook Capital Advisors advised Soundview on its sale to Trinity Consultants.
