

J.S. Held Expands Economic Damages & Valuations Practice with Acquisition of Forensic Resolutions, Inc.

January 9, 2024

Global consulting firm J.S. Held announces the acquisition of Forensic Resolutions, Inc., a forensic and investigative accounting firm based in New Jersey. Forensic Resolutions, Inc. advises law firms and insurance clients, both plaintiff and defendant, to help quantify the financial aspects of matters in dispute.

The firm combines its forensic and public accounting experience with its investigative mindset to measure economic damages, conduct fraud and corporate investigations, assess insurance claims, and provide expert services in complex litigation.

Howard Silverstone, Co-Founder of Forensic Resolutions, Inc., shares, "This partnership expands upon our financial and investigative expertise, amplifying our collective capabilities and enhancing our ability to provide clients with comprehensive solutions."

Over 20 years, Forensic Resolutions, Inc. has worked on thousands of financial disputes and insurance claims, including testifying in numerous mediations, arbitrations, and trials. The company's engagements span matters involving commercial damages, business interruption, lost profits, personal injury, wrongful death, fraud, construction and surety claims, subrogation, fidelity, contents and inventory, product liability, employment discrimination, wrongful termination, and medical malpractice, among others.

James Stavros, Co-Founder of Forensic Resolutions, Inc., said, "Joining forces with J.S. Held opens up new avenues of collaboration and growth for our team. We are excited to contribute specialized skills to a broader audience and continue delivering top-tier services to our clients."

David Weiner, Executive Vice President at J.S. Held, shares, "J.S. Held is acquiring a leader in forensic and investigative accounting. The addition of Forensic Resolutions expands our team of uniquely qualified economic damages and valuations experts and strengthens our presence in the Eastern United States." Mr. Weiner continues, "We are excited for what this addition brings to our clients as they navigate complex business problems and insurance claims."

As a result of the transaction, Forensic Resolutions, Inc. clients now have access to more than 1,500 technical, scientific, financial, and strategic experts across five continents, who specialize in areas including forensic accounting, property damage, investigations and compliance consulting, business and intellectual property valuation, cyber security, information governance, health and safety, the environment, materials analysis and lab testing, forensic engineering, accident reconstruction, and construction consulting, among others.

With the addition of Forensic Resolutions, J.S. Held adds key resources to advise law firms and insurance clients in complex insurance claims, fraud and corporate investigations, forensic and investigative accounting, and economic damages and financial disputes.
