

Dayton-area architecture firm completes merger, expands services

February 20, 2024

An architecture firm based out of the Dayton region has merged with a Cincinnati firm. The move will strengthen the firm's presence in the region and offer new services to clients.

Springboro-based Springhouse Architects has merged with Studiyo-b Architects, a full-service architecture firm based out of Cincinnati. The combined firms will move forward as Springhouse Architects and will offer residential architecture, commercial, and multifamily design for business owners, homeowners, home builders and developers.

Todd Yoby, principal of Studiyo-b Architects, will serve as director of architecture.

"With extensive commercial design experience, we're thrilled to have Todd join our team of architectural professionals and look forward to growing our presence in our respective markets," said Sheri Scott, founder and principal of Springhouse Architects.

Springhouse Architects specializes in high-end luxury homes and commercial design in the Dayton, Cincinnati and Columbus markets. The firm is currently working alongside Charles Simms Development on The Townes at Wright Dunbar, a $7.4 million housing project that will bring a set of condos into Dayton's historic downtown district. The development includes 26 three-story townhomes across four planned buildings.

Springhouse Architects is an architect-led, design-build company that helps create a thoughtfully designed and well-loved structure for home and business owners. Its Sheri Scott, founder and principal architect at Springhouse Architects founder, Sheri Scott, was named the 2023 Cincinnati Entrepreneur of the Year by Venue Magazine. Scott is licensed by the AIA and NCARB and has over 25 years of experience in residential architecture.

Todd Yoby is a registered architect in Ohio and Kentucky, as well as a member of the AIA and is registered with NCARB. With over 25 years of experience in the design and construction industry, Yoby offers expertise in a variety of commercial and residential projects as well as extensive experience in design/build and construction management project delivery methods.
