

The Ridgway Group has joined Cumming Group

April 15, 2024

Cumming Group, an international project management and cost consultancy, announced the addition of The Ridgway Group as its newest affiliate, expanding and enhancing the firm's capabilities in the luxury market by joining forces with an esteemed project and cost management professional services firm.

Established in 2014 in Los Angeles, The Ridgway Group, led by majority owner and UK-trained quantity surveyor Tom Donkin, specializes in luxury hospitality, retail, residential, and mixed-use projects internationally. By leveraging Ridgway's extensive experience in high-profile real estate, Cumming Group will strengthen its ability to cater to the evolving demands of this market across the United States, the United Kingdom, and Europe.

Enhancing Cumming Group's diverse portfolio, The Ridgway Group brings an impressive array of iconic luxury projects, including Celine Flagship Stores in Miami and Chicago, multiple Dior Stores throughout the USA, the Tiffany & Co. Landmark Store in New York City, multiple Sonesta properties spanning California, The Park Bel Air Estates, the prestigious Apex and Pendry Residences in Park City, Utah, and numerous developments for LVMH Moët Hennessy Louis Vuitton (LVMH), as well as representing numerous family offices and their private developments in the USA and Europe.

Derek Hutchison, President and CEO of Cumming Group, expressed his enthusiasm about the merger, stating, "The integration of The Ridgway Group into Cumming Group, with their international client base, aligns with several strategic objectives and builds on our collective portfolios and expertise. We are pleased to collaborate with such a talented team known for their meticulous execution of high-profile, bespoke developments."

Under the leadership of Tom Donkin, who brings more than two decades of experience in planning and managing luxury capital projects, The Ridgway Group will continue its operations within Cumming Group, ensuring a seamless transition and further enhancing the firm's capabilities.

Donkin remarked, "With a shared commitment to prioritizing clients' needs, we are poised for a prosperous future. The synergy between our teams, shared values, and robust resources not only fosters career advancement opportunities for our team but also guarantees an unparalleled level of service delivery for our valued clientele."
