Midwest Engineering Joins Fehr Graham

Natick, MA (April 17, 2024) – Midwest Engineering, a 34-person engineering firm based in East Peoria, Illinois, merged with Fehr Graham, a civil engineering, structural engineering, safety, and environmental services firm.

Having served the Peoria region for 14 years, Midwest Engineering specializes in civil/site transportation, hydraulic, structural, construction engineering, mechanical, electrical, plumbing engineering, professional land surveying, and landscape architecture services.

For Fehr Graham, Midwest Engineering's established structural and transportation engineering services combined with expertise in mechanical and electrical engineering align with strategic growth objectives. Fehr Graham President Mick Gronewold, PE, appreciates how well the strengths of the people from both firms complement each other.

During the transition, Midwest Engineering will be known as Midwest Engineering Associates, a Fehr Graham company. Together with 235 employees, the merger promises clients a broader spectrum of professional resources.

"Joining Fehr Graham opens doors to a large pool of expertise that will significantly benefit our clients," said David Horton, PE, co-owner of Midwest Engineering. "It's about providing a richer, more comprehensive service experience."

Morrissey Goodale, a specialized management consulting and research firm exclusively serving the architecture, engineering, and environmental consulting industries, initiated the transaction and advised Midwest Engineering.
