November 1, 2021

Metiri Group extends its reach in Wisconsin.

Synergy has been conducting state-of-the-art environmental testing for over fifteen years. Located in Appleton, Wisconsin, Synergy specializes in environmental testing projects for environmental consultants, municipalities, and business owners. Focusing on customer service, quick turn times, and quality data, Synergy provides an unparalleled level of expertise.

Metiri Group, with laboratories in Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and California, brings complementary analytical capabilities to support Synergy's clients. With NELAC accreditation, as well as various state and Federal certifications and accreditations, along with specialty capabilities for PFAS, TO-15, and dioxins, Metiri Group can offer Wisconsin clients an alternative, comprehensive solution for their analytical needs.

The purchase of Synergy supports Metiri's ambition to be the first choice for environmental analytical laboratory services. Achieving this goal requires a commitment to nimble and responsive service, a broad scope of capabilities, and an ability to deliver top-quality results. The Synergy team joins a growing family of Metiri employees who share this goal, and which looks forward to demonstrating at an even larger scale to its clients.

"Mike and his team have the highest level of dedication to serving their clients with responsive, technical counsel and service," says Metiri Group CEO Cabot Earle. "This has been the calling card for Synergy since Mike founded the company, and we're honored to continue to extend that service commitment into the future."
