March 04, 2025

Safety Partners strengthens Trinity's ability to blend rigorous science and industry expertise to solve clients' complex pharmaceutical development, safety and facility design challenges.

We are excited to announce that Safety Partners, a safety and compliance consultancy based in Massachusetts, has joined the Trinity Consultants Life Sciences division of business. Safety Partners provides services throughout the US with a growing presence in New York, North Carolina, and California.

Since its inception in 1992, Safety Partners has delivered EHS programs to science and technology organizations working with hazardous materials, equipment and processes. The company is committed to keeping scientists and engineers safe, their labs compliant, their operations running smoothly, and focused on the next scientific breakthrough – from lab design to product development. This acquisition will further strengthen Trinity's position as a market leader in the life sciences health and safety space.

“Safety Partners shares our ambition to combine scientific rigor, industry knowledge, and responsiveness to create a safer, more efficient lifecycle for pharmaceuticals and therapeutic products,” said Chuck Buttry, Operations Director in Trinity Consultants Life Sciences Division. “The company's complementary services, combined with its cultural synergies, will serve as a foundation to expand our life sciences business.”

Safety Partners' leadership team, including President and Chief Operating Officer, Jennifer Reilly, will work closely with Chuck Buttry and the Life Sciences team to deliver client focused solutions and identify internal and external growth opportunities.

“We're thrilled to partner with a global health and safety life science consulting firm that will build on and extend our ability to deliver workplace safety and compliance programs that are smart, tailored and right sized for science and technology clients,” said Jennifer Reilly. “We have collaborated with Trinity for over a decade, delivering innovation for clients in the life sciences R&D and manufacturing space. This partnership will accelerate our geographic expansion by leveraging Trinity's footprint of existing offices across North America and the world.”
